DERMATOLOGICAL SUPPORT
IN SKIN CARE WITH LESIONS
OF DIFFERENT BACKGROUNDS

Dermatoses, or skin diseases, are one of the most common health problems in dogs and cats. They can have a very diverse background and result from environmental factors, improper diet, as well as be associated with diseases of internal organs.

THEY ARE MOST OFTEN TRIGGERED BY:

- allergens (contained in food, medicines, environment: pollen, dust, mould or flea saliva),
- parasites,
- bacteria, viruses, fungi,
- hormonal imbalance (e.g. hyperestrogenization syndrome, hypothyroidism),
- internal organ dysfunction (e.g. cutaneoushepatic syndrome),
- decreased immunity associated with an accompanying disease,
- others (autoimmune diseases, cancers, etc.).

RISK FACTORS INCLUDE:

- reduced skin hydration,
- decreased immunity associated with the underlying disease,
- nutritional deficiencies (e.g. deficiencies of protein, vitamin A and E, essential unsaturated fatty acids, zinc, etc.),
- mechanical skin damage,
- keratinization disorders, etc.,
- lack of proper skin hygiene.

THE MOST COMMON SKIN PROBLEMS IN DOGS AND CATS INCLUDE:

- hot spots,
- atopic dermatitis in dogs,
- flea allergy dermatitis,
- bacterial dermatitis (deep or superficial),
- dermatophytosis,
- parasitic diseases (demodicosis, scabies).
